CHAPTER XIX.

WHEN Thorpe there could be no halfway measure. He saw that the rupture with his sister was final, and the thrust attacked him in one of his few unprotected points. At first the spring of his life seemed broken. He did not care for money, and at present disappointment had numbed his interest in the game. It seemed hardly worth the candle.

Then in a few days he began to look about him mentally. Unconsciously the combative instinct was aroused. In lack of other object on which to expend itself Thorpe's fighting spirit turned with energy to the subject of the lawsuit.

After his sister left the Renwick's Thorpe himself went to Detroit, where he interviewed at once Northrop, the brilliant young lawyer whom the firm had engaged to defend his case.

"I'm afraid we have no show," he replied to Thorpe's question. "You see, you fellows were on the wrong side of the fence in trying to enforce the law yourselves. Of course you may well say that justice was all on your side. That does not count. The only recourse recognized for injustice lies in the law courts. I'm afraid you are due to lose your case."

"Well," said Thorpe, "they can't prove much damage."

"I don't expect that they will be able to procure a very heavy judgment," replied Northrop. "The facts I shall be able to adduce will cut down damages. But the costs will be very heavy."

"Yes," agreed Thorpe.

"And," then pursued Northrop, with a dry smile, "they practically own Sherman. You may be in far contempt of court—at their instigation. As I understand it, they are trying rather to injure you than to get anything out of it themselves."

"That's it," nodded Thorpe.

"In other words, it's a case for compromise."

"Just what I wanted to get at," said Thorpe, with satisfaction. "Now answer me a question. Suppose a man injures government or state land by trespass. The land is afterward bought by another party. Has the latter any claim for damage against the trespasser? Understand me, the purchaser bought after the trespass was committed."

"Certainly," answered Northrop without hesitation, "provided suit is brought within six years of the time the trespass was committed."

"Good! Now, see here. These M. & D. people stole about a section of government pine on up that river, and I don't believe they've ever bought in the land it stood on. In fact, I don't believe they suspect that any one knows they've been stealing. How would it do if I were to buy that section at the land office and threaten to sue them for the value of the pine that originally stood on it?"

The lawyer's eyes glimmered behind the lenses of his pince-nez. "It would do very well indeed," he replied, "but you'd have to prove they did the cutting, and you'll have to pay experts to estimate the probable amount of the timber. How much, on a broad guess, would you estimate the timber to come to?"

"There ought to be eight or ten millions," guessed Thorpe after an instant's silence, "worth in the stump anywhere from sixteen to twenty thousand dollars. It would cost me only eight hundred to buy it."

"Do so by all means. Get your documents and evidence all in shape and let me have them. I'll see that the suit is discontinued then."

The next day Thorpe took the train north. By the time he had bought the sixteen acres constituting the section, searched out a dozen witnesses to the theft and spent a week with the Marquette expert in looking over the ground he had fallen into the swing of work again. His experience still ached, but duly.

Only now he possessed no interests outside of those in the new country, no affections save the half protecting, good natured comradeship with Wallace, the mutual self restraint respect that subsisted between Tim Shearer and himself and the dumb, unreasoning dog liking he shared with Injun Charley. His eye became clearer and steadier, his methods more simple and direct. The taciturnity of his mood redoubled in thickness. He was less charitable to failure on the part of subordinates. And the new firm on the Ossawinimakee prospered.

CHAPTER XX.

FIVE years passed. In that time Thorpe had succeeded in cutting 100,000,000 feet of pine. The money received for this had all been turned back into the company's funds. From a single camp of twenty-five men the concern had increased to six large, well equipped communities of 80 to 100 men apiece, using nearly 200 horses and hauling as far as eight or nine miles.

Near the port stood a mammoth saw-mill capable of taking care of 22,000,000 feet a year, about which a lumber town had sprung up. Besides its original holding the company had acquired about 150,000,000 more back near the headwaters of the Ossawinimakee.

LONDON THRILLED

Sudden Death of Whitaker Wright Causes Intense Sensation.

POINTS TO POISONING

Just After Receiving Sentence to Penal Servitude Celebrated Prisoner Dropped Dead.

A Remarkable Career Ends in Public Disgrace Culminating in Tragedy.

London, Jan. 27.—Late yesterday afternoon Whitaker Wright was sentenced to seven years penal servitude. An hour later he lay dead on the floor of a small room in the law courts. Whether he took his own life by poison or whether death in its natural course robbed the law of its fulfillment will not be known until a post mortem examination is held; the indications, however, point to poisoning.

The career of this man, who was known on three continents for his stupendous financial operations, closed in a startling tragedy. Even in his life, which with his rise from poverty to enormous wealth was full of dramatic incidents, there was nothing that could compare with the manner of his death. All London is thrilled with the news of it. No such human tragedy has been enacted in England for many a year.

Until nearly 8 o'clock last night the body of the man who formerly had controlled many of the world's markets and who had been courted by royalty, remained upon the floor of the room where he fell, for as a convicted felon, Wright's person had become the property of the crown. The home office finally gave permission for its removal and the body was given over to the jurisdiction of the coroner. It now lies at Westminster mortuary, where almost all the corpses taken from the Thames are laid out. The inquest probably will be held on Thursday. Mrs. Wright, the dead man's wife, is an American. She now lies ill at the magnificent country home which Wright had in Surrey. Dispatches from there say with a certain ingenuously pathos: "The news of Whitaker Wright's death has caused much sorrow. He was well known here for his acts of generosity, and it was generally believed that he would be acquitted and return home again."

The feeling that Justice Bingham's conduct of the case was not very judicial appears to grow in legal circles of London, and the sentence imposed upon Wright would have in itself furnished England with an unexpected sensation. Until counsel commenced pleading the actual trial of Whitaker Wright scarcely aroused that keen public interest which was exhibited when Wright was in the United States or when parliament decided he did not come within the pale of law-breakers.

When Messrs. Isaacs and Walton started to make their appeal to the jury the people awoke to the gravity of the issues concerned. Even the government was involved, for it had taken the stand that Wright could not be prosecuted. Furthermore, it was an open secret that many great and even royal names were indirectly involved in the proceedings. Friends of Wright had said that if driven into a corner he would tell who had profited by his transactions. Suspense reigned in many quarters while counsel for the defense made their appeal, and when the appeal was finished those involved breathed easier and public curiosity remained unsatisfied.

Justice Bingham, in passing sentence, said he could see nothing to excuse the crime of which Wright had been convicted, and he could not conceive a worse case. He must therefore allot the most severe penalty the law permitted. Wright, who had stood up to receive his sentence, said in a firm voice: "All I can say is that I am as innocent of any intention to deceive as anyone in this court." Wright was then removed in custody. Suddenly Wright fell backward as if he had fainted. The first thought was that he had fallen in an ordinary apoplectic fit, but it was noticed that his heart began gradually to give out and before a doctor could arrive Whitaker Wright within one hour of the time he had been sentenced, was dead. An examination of the body points strongly to the fact that death was due to poison.

SEARCH IMPEDED

Bodies of Victims of Harwick Mine Disaster Still Entombed.

Pittsburg, Jan. 27.—Even the elements seem conspiring to prevent the work of rescue at the Harwick mine. Almost zero weather and a bitter, biting, cruel wind swept down over the little valley where the mine is located and nearly added another list of dead to the long black table already measured off. Not only was the work of search for the dead and living, if any are still alive, rudely interrupted, but cold and ice and wind combined nearly cost the lives of sixteen more good men.

Sixteen men went down into the shaft to do the work of bratticing, bolting, tunnelling and removing the debris that has so far barred their progress into the workings where the men were at labor, when the explosion came. Their shift was supposed to be of three hours only. Even at that it was a hard task. Even before the bucket reached the bottom they were drenched with water which the cold draft through the shafts turned to ice. It was six hours after the first three men of the party who went down were brought to the surface. Not one of them was able to walk, so numb by the cold were they, and then they told of the experience in the mine below.

Henry Beckert was one of the first men out of the cage. "It was a frightful experience," said he. "We were too cold to work. There is apparently no one to rescue. We had a hard time to find many of the dead. A shred of clothing here and another there, a jacket, a pair of overalls, but few bodies."

NOTHING TO SAY

Senator Burton Declares That He Has Talked Enough.

St. Louis, Jan. 27.—United States Senator Joseph Ralph Burton of Kansas, who was indicted Saturday by the federal grand jury on the charge of accepting money from the Rialto Grain and Securities company for the alleged purpose of unduly influencing the post-office authorities with respect to a recommendation concerning a possible fraud order, has arrived in St. Louis. When asked if he desired to make a statement relative to the case, Senator Burton said: "Not at the present time. I believe I have talked enough on the subject already." Senator Burton went to the federal building this morning and gave bond for his appearance.

A few minutes after his arrival Senator Burton was met by Attorney Chester H. Krum, who has been retained to defend him. In answer to a question the senator remarked that he was not at all alarmed about the charge against him and was confident of a prompt acquittal.

Tatem Under Arrest.

Cincinnati, Jan. 27.—A telegram received here from Denver, Colo., states that Fred Tatem, the alleged defaulting treasurer of the International Wood Carvers' Union of North America, is under arrest in that city. Tatem is charged with embezzling $3,745 from the union. He will be extradited and brought back to this city.

Sensational Suicide.

Dayton, O., Jan. 27.—Carl Freigau, secretary of the Poland China Record association and treasurer of the Chester White Record association, shot himself twice in the head. He cannot live. These associations began their annual meeting here today.

RHEUMATISM

AN INDESCRIBABLE TORTURE

Because Rheumatism sometimes comes on suddenly it doesn't prove that it is a chance disease or one due to accidental causes. It takes time for it to develop, and is at work in the system long before any symptoms are felt. The blood is the first point of attack, and the poisonous acids that cause the aches and pains are then distributed through the circulation to different parts of the system, and settle in joints, muscles and nerves; and when the system is in this condition it needs only some exciting cause like exposure to night air, damp, chilly weather, or the cold, bleak winds of winter, to arouse the slumbering poisons and bring on Rheumatism. The severity of the attack depends upon the amount of acid in the blood and the quantity of acid matter in the joints and muscles. Some people are almost helpless from the first, while others have occasional spells or are uncomfortable, restless, nervous and half sick all the time from the nagging aches and pains. Rheumatism is a disagreeable companion even in its mildest form. It grows worse as we grow older, and frequently stiffens the joints, draws the muscles out of shape and breaks down the nervous system. A disease that originates in the blood, as Rheumatism does, cannot be cured with external remedies like liniments and plasters; such things scatter the pains or drive them to some other part of the body, but do not touch the disease or improve the condition of the blood. The thin acid blood must be restored to its normal purity and strength, so that all poisonous substances may be carried out of the system, and no medicine accomplishes this in so short a time as S.S.S., which not only neutralizes the acids and counteracts the poisons, but builds up the general health at the same time.

AND now Tom Johnson is to follow the footsteps of William the Commoner on a tour through Europe. He means to do some hobnobbing on his own account and study the common people. He does not propose to get out of touch with the "peerless leader."

THE Princeton fisherman, Ex-President Cleveland, says that he has nothing to say along political lines at this time. He adds, sarcastically, that Bryan has the stage. That is to say Bryan is doing the talking and what he is saying is not pleasing to the Ex-President, for it is not complimentary to him.

THE placing of the responsibility for the Iroquois theatre fire on Chicago officials has attracted wide attention and caused much comment. But why should not public officers be called to account if they have failed in their duty? The law specifies their official duties and they take an oath to obey the law. The public official who disregards the law and becomes a sort of law unto himself violates his oath and betrays the people. All good citizens believe in upholding the majesty of the law.

UNDER the law of 1903 township trustees must publish their reports showing the amount of each order, to whom it was given and what for. The cost of publishing a report is very slight. It will be a matter of interest to every taxpayer to know in detail the expense of the trustee's office. Publicity in affairs that concern the public is everywhere advocated. It is a safeguard that is generally approved. The honest official does not fear publicity of his official acts. In fact he invites publicity. The dishonest official shirks from publicity. He opposes it. It is not difficult to understand why. Publicity is in the interests of the taxpayers.

INVOLUNTARY MANSLAUGHTER

Verdict in Abel Case Returned at 2 O'clock Today.

Special to the REPUBLICAN.

SEYMOUR, IND., Jan. 27.—The jury returned a verdict at 2 o'clock this afternoon finding the defendant, Cudworth W. Abel, guilty of involuntary manslaughter. This means an indeterminate sentence of from two to twenty-one years, unless a new trial be granted.

The jury was out over twenty four hours.

VERBATIM REPORTING.

It Involves Five Distinct Simultaneous Mental Operations.

Psychologists may find an interesting field for investigation in the intellectual processes that are involved in rapid shorthand writing. There are at least five distinct mental operations carried on continuously during verbatim reporting. First, there is the sensation of sound received by the ear; secondly, there is the perception by the brain of the word uttered; practically simultaneous with the sensation in the case of a distinct speaker, but often delayed a large fraction of a second when a preacher "drops his voice" or a witness in court has a foreign accent. In the third place, the stenographer must analyze the consonantal structure of all the less common words in the sentence, all except the stock words and phrases, which he writes by word signs by a practically automatic habit.

Fourth, these relatively uncommon words must be put on paper according to the principles of the system employed. This one operation involves many subordinate and infinitely swift efforts of recollection, association and decision. Fifth, all these mental operations are carried on while the pen or pencil is from two or three words to an entire sentence behind the speaker—this, of course, in rapid speaking—thereby complicating the situation by compelling memory to keep pace with attention. In other words, while the scribe is writing the predicate of one sentence and analyzing an unfamiliar word in the subject of the next, he is at the same time giving his auditory attention to the predicate of the second sentence then being uttered by the speaker. This is impossible to an untrained mind. The average educated person cannot retain more than perhaps six or eight words of the exact phraseology of a speaker at one time. The competent stenographer can hold up ten, fifteen, twenty words or even more in his memory, while at the same time taxing his mind by the act of writing the words that preceded.—The World Today.

Sure of a Fine Funeral.

"Larry," said a merchant to a sturdy Irishman in his employ, "are you saving any of your money?"

"Indeed I am, sir," replied Larry. "I've got $400 hid away in a safe place."

"But it isn't a public spirited policy to hoard money away," remarked the merchant, thinking to quiz him. "You ought to deposit it in a good bank, so as to keep it in circulation."

"Sure I'll all go into circulation the second day after I'm dead, sir," said Larry proudly.—Youth's Companion.

He Knew a Thing or Two.

Anaxagoras, the Athenian philosopher, who flourished in the fifth century before Christ, taught his scholars that wind was air set in motion by rarefaction; that the moon owed her light giving properties to the sun; that the rainbow was the resulting phenomenon of reflection; that comets were wandering stars, and that the fixed stars were at an immeasurable distance beyond the sun, besides giving them many other ideas thought to belong to modern times.

MANY DOCTORS

Interested in the Case of Mrs. Robert Whiteley.

W. F. Peter Drug Co's. Vinol Cured Her of Chronic Stomach Trouble and She has Gained 36 Pounds.

Mr. Robert Whiteley of Pittsburg, Pa., writes: My wife was subject to chronic stomach trouble and terrible nervousness; she was thin and had a worn out look. Doctors, after expense, all failed to help her. At last she tried Vinol, and soon the change in her condition seemed almost miraculous. She continued its use and today is in perfect health and has gained 36 pounds—her friends hardly know her so great is the change. To

Vinol we give all the praise, and everywhere I recommend your Vinol, as I have more faith in it than I have in doctors or any other medicine."

Our Vinol cures conditions like this because it contains in a concentrated form, all the vital principles contained in cod liver oil, and it is the greatest strength creator known to medicine. Vinol tones up the tired weakened nerves of the stomach; it invigorates every organ in the body to do its work as nature intended, and solid, firm flesh, abounding in health and vitality is the sure result.

Every person in Seymour is invited to call at our store and get a bottle of Vinol. If it fails to do what we claim for it we will give back your money. You see by the above letter that the fame of Vinol is spreading far and wide. W. F. Peter Drug Co.

We notice by the papers that the trustees of the different townships are trying to get the legislature to repeal the law compelling trustees to make an itemized report of the expenditures of the different townships on the grounds that it costs the township too much to publish the report in two county papers. The tax payers are not complaining, why should the trustees? We think it one among the best laws the legislature ever enacted. The money belongs to the public and it is right that they should know to what purpose the money is spent. We think the legislature will see that the law is not repealed.

AN UNHAPPY LAPSE

Carl Wincowski's Record Puzzles Indiana Prison Officials.

CAN'T ACCOUNT FOR IT

From Criminologist's Standpoint the Man's Lapse is Looked Upon as Very Peculiar.

When He Left Prison He Evincing Every Desire to Keep the Straight Road.

Michigan City, Ind., Jan. 27.—Carl Wincowski, under arrest at South Bend for shooting Detective Kuespert in the Lake Shore railway yards, was a paroled convict from the Michigan City prison. He was received in June, 1901, having been convicted of larceny in St. Joseph county, and was paroled in October, 1902, because of exceptionally good conduct. The prison officials regarded him as a particularly bright and well-behaved prisoner, punctilious in his observance of the rules. On his release he was given a position with the Reliance Manufacturing company, this city, where he remained for one year, preserving his good record and winning the highest praise from his superiors in the factory. After he had won his discharge at the end of his parole he concluded to return to South Bend, and he left with high hopes that he would be successful in living down the disgrace of his imprisonment. From the standpoint of the criminologist the man's lapse, under the circumstances, is looked upon as peculiar and very unusual. The most experienced prison men here are unable to account for it.

MYSTERY REMAINS

Bedford Police Still at Sea in the Schafer Murder Case.

Bedford, Ind., Jan. 27.—The city council has appointed a committee of three as a board of safety to conduct the search for the murderer of Miss Sarah Schafer, the school teacher. Some of the detectives are working on the theory that she was murdered by a jealous lover. She received letters nearly every day, and upon reading them threw them into the fire. She never told the contents of the letters to anyone.

Nearly 100 witnesses have been examined. Every rumor that has seemed probable or improbable has been run down and yet the crime seems as impenetrable as on the day it was committed. Prosecuting Attorney Miller says there is absolutely nothing to base the arrest of anyone even on suspicion, much less to hold the arrested party in court. Mr. Miller agrees that a tall man wearing a long overcoat was the murderer, and that the motive was unrequited passion, but he can find no evidence for that or any other theory.

She Had No Rightful Claim.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—The suit of Fanny Bush, administratrix of the estate of James Dillard, against John S. Dudley, sheriff of Sullivan county, to recover $10,000 damages, which has been in the federal court for ten months, has been dismissed on motion of the plaintiff. In 1902 Dillard committed a crime for which he was arrested. While in the custody of Sheriff Dudley he was taken by an angry mob and lynched. His mother, Fannie Bush, brought suit to recover $10,000 damages. Dudley presented the argument that as she was the illegitimate mother of Dillard she had no claim to him. This argument caused the case to be dismissed.

Good Spirits.

Good spirits don't all come from Kentucky. Their main source is the liver—and all the fine spirits ever made in the Blue Grass State could not remedy a bad liver or the hundred-and-one ill effects it produces. You can't have good spirits and a bad liver at the same time. Your liver must be in fine condition if you would feel buoyant, happy and hopeful, bright of eye, light of step, vigorous and successful in your pursuits. You can put your liver in fine condition by using Green's August Flower—the greatest of all medicines for the liver and stomach and a certain cure for dyspepsia or indigestion. It has been a favorite household remedy for over thirty-five years. August Flower will make your liver healthy and active and thus insure you a liberal supply of "good spirits." ROCKFORD GETS FACTORY.

Canning Factory to be Built There by Crothersville Men.

Rockford citizens are feeling pretty good today for they were informed this morning that William Fultz, G. W. Warner and D. G. Stanton, all of Crothersville, had decided to build a canning factory in their town. That being true they have a right to celebrate.

For several days negotiations for the location of a canning factory at Rockford have been pending. A public meeting was held last Saturday at which time the farmers came forward with the required amount of acreage for corn and tomatoes. An option was secured for a site just west of the Rockford depot. Conditions having been met, nothing remained but for the Crothersville men to close the contract.

The REPUBLICAN is informed that a factory to cost $10,000 will be erected this spring and that it will be ready in time to handle the crop of corn and tomatoes and some sweet potatoes this year. Contracts for 400 acres of corn, 300 acres of tomatoes and 100 acres of sweet potatoes have been secured.

Rockford is to be congratulated over securing this industry. A successfully operated canning factory is a good thing for any community.

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidate and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributions, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensation and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it. "More in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep 'up with the times,' intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is 'indispensable.'"

MISS MONIE BOWEY,

No. 38 Perry Street, DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

A couple of winters ago I slipped on a frozen sidewalk and fell flat on my back. On being examined I found that I had sustained internal injuries which laid me up for more than two months. After that I noticed that I had pains in the back and groin which I never had before. I doctored and doctored for several months but as the pains increased instead of growing better I decided that I was not having the right treatment. Reading in the papers of the wonderful cures performed by Wine of Cardui I wrote to one of the parties and received a very satisfactory reply and I immediately sent for some. In a very short time I felt generally better and after seven weeks faithful use I was once more well and strong. I have never had a sick hour since and I daily bless your splendid medicine.

WINE OF CARDUI is one medicine that should always be kept on hand in every home for immediate use when female weakness first makes its appearance. Miss Bowe's painful and dangerous accident would not have resulted so seriously had she taken Wine of Cardui promptly.

A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.

EDITORS GREETED

FORWARD IS THE WATCHWORD

The Principles of Republicanism eloquently outlined by Indiana's Brilliant Junior Senator—Senator Fairbanks Sends Cordial Words of Greeting and Congratulations.

Notable features of the annual convention of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association were the greetings received from both of Indiana's distinguished senators. Senator Beveridge had accepted an invitation to be present at the meeting, but his attendance was prevented by physical indisposition. He however sent a letter addressed to the association through President Stivers and Secretary Montgomery, the reading of which created great interest and enthusiasm. Senator Beveridge said:

"It had been my purpose until yesterday to be with you at your annual banquet. But during my recent indisposition from the grip there has been such an accumulation of official work and duties here that I find it impossible to leave Washington at this particular time. You may be quite sure that nothing else would prevent me from meeting the Republican editors of Indiana face to face.

"While all the meetings of your association are important, this one is particularly so, for another national campaign is approaching in which the Republican press of the state and nation must bear the heaviest part of the great work of presenting the views of our party to the whole people.

A Suggestion of Purposes.

"While it is impossible in the brief limits of a letter or even in such an address as the proprieties of the occasion would permit at the banquet table, to set out in detail the record of our Republican administration and the relation of what we have done, are doing and propose to do for the welfare of the country, it is possible to make a suggestion of our purposes in general and of the spirit which animates us and differentiates us from the opposition.

"First of all, the Republican party has come to be the party of conservatism. It is the party of progress, too, but of conservative progress. We believe that the good accomplished in the past should be preserved and that the evils which have developed along with the good of our industrial and commercial system, are so radical and ill-advised that, were they put in force, they would also destroy the good with the bad. From this position of moderation and good sense we will not be swayed by any temporary clamor—by the agitation of thoughtless men or the attempts of the reckless to array our people into classes. We are one nation, one people—with all of our interests woven inextricably into the great fabric of our common prosperity. And so, in our policies we have kept in mind this dependence of every citizen on every other citizen, and of every industry on every other industry. From our viewpoint labor and capital are the different sides of the same shield, beneath which in safety reposes the well-being of the American people; from the viewpoint of our opponents labor and capital are hostile forces.

"We have been and must continue to be the upholders of law and order. A general review of our legislation will show that the laws we have passed have been for the benefit of the whole people and our administration of all the laws of the country, no matter by what party passed, demonstrates that we enforce the statutes of the country with fearless impartiality.

"Our foreign policy has been one of peace with all nations; and this policy has never been interrupted by us save when the interests of humanity and the safeguarding of the republic's future have imperatively demanded a sterner course.

"So that a description of the spirit which animates the Republican party might be summed up in these three words: Conservatism, progress, peace—and as the necessary result of all of these the steady and continuous prosperity of the whole land. To the test of this high standard all our work for the nation may be put; and it will be found that our record measures up to its high requirements.

Appealing to the Firesides.

"Careful observers have noted the steady increase among the people of that thoughtfulness, poise and reserve which alone can make a republic permanent and successful. And it is to this growing tendency of the people to consult their sober second thought that we appeal. Mature reflection is the wisest counselor which either a man or a party can have, just as prompt action is a man's or a nation's best servant when a wise course has been carefully determined. And so it is that the record, purposes and spirit of our party will increasingly appeal to the firesides of the nation where all large questions are discussed and determined, and where the verdict is really made which is afterward registered at the ballot box.

"It is for these reasons that I confidently say to you, the Republican editors of Indiana, who must carry our message to every home in the commonwealth, that your task this year will not be fruitless; but that your labors will be rewarded by an emphatic vote of approval of the Republican party, to which we are all in common equally devoted. I have no fear that this statement will inspire overconfidence, it is not necessary to frighten good soldiers by the suggestion of a possible defeat. Men like the Republican editors of Indiana, and indeed the rank and file of our party, are the kind of men to whom the knowledge that they are striving for wise and righteous principles and policies is sufficient inspiration for sleepless vigilance and unrelaxing effort. They are the kind of men who do not need the stimulus of fear on the one hand, and on the other hand, are not to be dragged into neglect of duty by the prospect of certain victory.

Going Forward Confidently.

"Let us then go forward to our work with the strength which comes from the knowledge that we are right; with that calmness which is always the evidence of real might, and with that pleasure in our labor which the belief that we will be successful always brings and with that enthusiasm inspired by Theodore Roosevelt who as the maker of the record which must be our platform, will be overwhelmingly elected president of the whole people of the United States whom he has with devotion and impartiality so faithfully served. He is a commander who has never known defeat. Under his leadership we will this year achieve another overwhelming victory for sound policies, right principles and conservative and farseeing American statesmanship.

"Will you not present to your association collectively and to each member of it individually, my kindest regards, and remember me very especially to the wives of the editors who at the last banquet were such an attractive element of it and whose responses won such merited applause? Say to all the members of your association that I shall hope to meet each of them during the coming campaign and add my efforts to theirs in behalf of the cause for which we are all co-workers."

Senator Fairbanks' Greeting.

Senator Charles W. Fairbanks sent the following telegraphic greeting from Washington to the Republican editors on the same occasion:

"I wish you would kindly express to the Republican Editorial Association the very great regrets of Mrs. Fairbanks and myself that we are unable to be with you tonight. We hope that you may have a most delightful meeting. No one can overestimate the splendid work which the Republican editors of Indiana have done in upholding and advancing the cause of good government. All honor to them! Health and happiness to you each and all!"

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

Indiana Republican Editors Make a Declaration of Principles.

At the recent annual meeting of the Indiana State Republican Editorial Association the following resolutions were unanimously adopted by a rising vote:

"The Indiana Republican Editorial Association assembled in regular meeting for 1904, declare continued unfaltering allegiance to Republican principles and policies, which have brought such great prosperity to the American nation and carried the blessings of liberty and just government to all its inhabitants.

"We reassert the Republican doctrine of equality of every American citizen before the law and in the use of the elective franchise.

"The Republican press of Indiana heartily approve and endorse the courageous, wise and patriotic administration of Theodore Roosevelt as president of the United States, and we most emphatically favor his nomination and election for another term in the office so ably and acceptably filled by him, and we pledge our most earnest efforts to this end.

"The Republican press of Indiana, recognizing the wise counsel and splendid ability of Senator M. A. Hanna as chairman of the Republican national committee cordially express their appreciation of the same and express hope that he will continue in the same capacity for another term.

"The wise administration of state affairs under Governor Winfield T. Durbin has our hearty approval and we commend his successful efforts to bring additional honors to Indiana through an efficient state administration. We note with approval the seconding of Governor Durbin's good work by the state officers, in whose record of efficiency we have just pride.

"We send greetings to our senior and junior senators, Fairbanks and Beveridge, who have brought honor to Indiana by their great ability in the United States senate, and we declare our loyal support to Albert J. Beveridge for his re-election to the senate by the next legislature.

"The ability, wisdom and patriotism of Indiana's representatives in congress is a matter of just state pride. The loyalty of our Republican congressmen to the cardinal doctrines of the party of Lincoln, Harrison, McKinley and Roosevelt has our enthusiastic approval, and we applaud their ability as advocates and defenders of Republican principles and policies.

"Hon James P. Goodrich, chairman, and his associates on the state central committee have our united support and co-operation in the essential and important public service of keeping the state of Indiana in the Republican column, with our banners yet higher advanced, and every pledge for the public welfare, through the agency of our party, sacredly kept and fulfilled."

George's Kind Permission.

"Mary," her father called downstairs, "just ask your man if he doesn't think it's pretty near bedtime!"

"Yes, papa," replied the sweet girl, after a pause. "George says if you're sleepy go to bed, by all means."—Toldo Rec.

GROFF TESTIFIES

He Has Something to Say About Post-office Inspectors.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Testimony designed to show the existence of a conspiracy to defraud the government was introduced by the prosecution in the postal trial. At the outset the question of the admissibility of the declaration of Diller B. Groff made to postoffice inspectors came up for further argument. Counsel for the defense vigorously contended that the declaration was not a voluntary one, but was made under duress, while the government insisted that when confronted with charges D. B. Groff had resorted to evasion, subterfuge and falsehood. The court finally decided that the statement was evidence against Diller B. Groff, but not against the other defendants, and that the jury would decide as to whether it was made voluntarily or not. Postoffice Inspectors Rolfe, Therp, McKee and Mayer, all of whom had interviewed the Groffs prior to their arrest, detailed the circumstances surrounding these conversations.

Diller B. Groff, in his own behalf, declared that when the inspectors called on him their manner was overbearing, gruff and bulldozing. He said he had been suffering from insomnia at the time, and signed the statement upon its being read to him. He then testified that the inspectors had said to him that they wanted to arrest two men "and if you will give us the information that will convict them we will give you $13,000 and let you ride in the government hand wagon, and we will ride with flying colors." It subsequently was brought out that the $13,000 referred to represented the amount the government owed the Groffs, and payment for which had been held up. Mr. Douglas for the defense charged that the whole case was honeycombed with intimidation.

Postoffice inspector Mayer came in for a searching cross-examination and admitted that in an affidavit made by himself referring to an interview he had had with Samuel A. Groff he had omitted certain replies by Groff, but denied that he resorted to threats in order to elicit the statements from Groff. Inspector McKee under a rigid cross-examination said Mayer had said to Samuel A. Groff: "If you are a patriot, come to the rescue of the government at this time." Mr. McKee adding that the conversation generally led to Maehen as being the one suspected of getting a "rake off" on the letter box fasteners.

How to Burn Gas Coke for the Best Results.

In order to burn Gas Coke satisfactorily, build your fire even and deep; remember, you cannot get or keep a good fire with Coke unless you do. Owing to its peculiar fractured and rough grain it does not pack so closely as hard coal and leaves more in spaces; to overcome this you must keep a deeper fire. After the Coke is well ignited, shut off the draft; if you do not want much heat, you can regulate your fire perfectly with the damper. Be sure to keep a good supply of Coke on the fire; you are not using as much weight of Coke as you would hard coal.

When leaving the fire for the night, put on plenty of Coke, and shut off the draft entirely, leaving a good bed of ashes on the grates to check the draft. For sale by
